Hangu Tragedy: SP Asad Zubair And Two Policemen Martyred In Devastating Blast

HANGU: At least three Khyber Pakhtunkhwa (KP) policemen, including the Superintendent of Police (SP) Operations, were martyred after twin blasts rocked KP's Hangu district on Friday, police said.

Police identified the martyred police officer as SP Operations Asad Zubair. They said at least three cops were also injured in a blast that targeted the vehicle of SP Operations.

KP Inspector General of Police (IGP) Zulfiqar Hameed said that SP Zubair's vehicle was targeted in an improvised explosive device (IED) attack as they were rushing to inspect a blast site.

He said that the high-ranking police official and two others embraced martyrdom in the IED attack. The first blast occurred beside a police checkpoint in Ghulmina and caused no casualties, IGP Hameed added.

The second explosion, targeting SP Zubair's vehicle, took place in the Darband area, about two kilometres from the checkpoint.

The wounded were shifted to DHQ Hospital Hangu following the two blasts, District Police Officer Khanzeb Mohmand said.

A bomb disposal squad and police commandos have since launched a search operation in the area.

President Asif Ali Zardari condemned the attack on the police personnel, which he said was carried out by India-backed Khawarij terrorists.

He paid rich tribute to the martyred policemen, while lambasting the attackers as "enemies of Pakistan's peace and stability".

Interior Minister Mohsin Naqvi expressed heartfelt condolences and sympathy to the bereaved families of the martyred policemen.

The minister vowed that SP Zubair and the two policemen's sacrifice would not go in vain, saying that the personnel had attained the highest rank of martyrdom.

PM Shehbaz Pitches Pakistan As The Region's Next Strategic Trade & Transit Hub

ISLAMABAD: Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif underlined Pakistan's growing significance in regional transport and economic connectivity while addressing the closing session of the Regional Transport Ministers' Conference.

He described the event as a vital platform for dialogue and strengthening bilateral and regional relations.

"On behalf of the government and the people, I welcome all participating delegates," the PM Shehbaz said, emphasising the importance of collaboration and mutual prosperity.

He pointed out that global transport and connectivity systems are undergoing rapid changes, adding that Pakistan has long remained a key hub in the region, particularly under the Belt and Road Initiative.

Highlighting the strategic importance of the country's infrastructure, the premier mentioned Gwadar's long coastal belt and Karachi Port as integral parts of the Maritime Silk Road.

PM Shehbaz noted that Pakistan is entering the second phase of the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor, which aims to enhance trade, investment, and economic integration.

"Increasing regional connectivity will bring a revolution in the economic and trade sectors," he said, adding that projects like the Trans-Afghan Railway and the Islamabad-Tehran-Istanbul Railway Corridor are already underway.

He further emphasised that cooperation in trade, economy, and energy would usher in a new era, and that modern connectivity extends beyond physical routes.

"In the digital age, connectivity is not limited to roads, railways, or air routes. Today, it is linked with data and technological integration," PM Shehbaz said, highlighting Pakistan's ongoing investments in digital infrastructure.

Sanctions Bite: China's State Oil Giants Halt Russian Crude Purchases

SINGAPORE: Chinese state oil majors have suspended purchases of seaborne Russian oil after the United States imposed sanctions on Rosneft and Lukoil, Moscow's two biggest oil companies, multiple trade sources said on Thursday.

The move comes as refiners in India, the largest buyer of seaborne Russian oil, are set to sharply cut their crude imports from Moscow to comply with the US sanctions imposed over the Kremlin's invasion of Ukraine.

A sharp drop in oil demand from Russia's two largest customers will put a strain on Moscow's oil revenues and force the world's top importers to seek alternative supplies and push up global prices.

Chinese national oil companies PetroChina, Sinopec, CNOOC and Zhenhua Oil will refrain from dealing in seaborne Russian oil at least in the short-term due to concern over sanctions, the sources said.

The four companies did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

While China imports roughly 1.4 million barrels of Russian oil per day by sea, most of that is bought by independent refiners, including small operators known as teapots, although estimates of purchases by state refiners vary widely.—RT/Agency

KP: Pakistan security forces neutralised eight Fitna al Khawarij militants during an operation in Lakki Marwat, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa.

According to the sources, the operation was executed with high military precision, leaving the militants no chance to escape.

The leadership has also directed zealots to hide among civilians and use the original population as securities during operations.

Reports further reveal that kirks and guest houses have been exploited for making extemporized explosive bias(IEDs) and for sheltering fighters.—RT/Agency

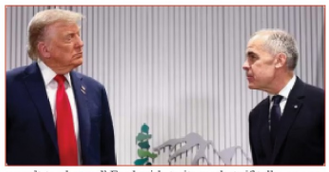
Mercurial Trump Hits The Brakes: Declares All Trade Talks With Canada "Terminated"



WASHINGTON: U.S. President Donald Trump said on Thursday that all trade talks with Canada were terminated following what he called a fraudulent advertisement in which former President Ronald Reagan spoke negatively about tariffs.

"Based on their egregious behavior, ALL TRADE NEGOTIATIONS WITH CANADA ARE HEREBY TERMINATED," Trump wrote on Truth Social.

Ontario Premier Doug Ford said earlier this week that the ad with anti-tariff messaging had caught Trump's attention. The ad showed Reagan, a Republican, criticizing tariffs on foreign goods while saying they caused job losses and trade wars.

"I heard that the president heard our ad. I'm sure he wasn't too happy," Ford said on Tuesday.

Trump has used tariffs as leverage on many countries around the world.

His trade war has increased U.S. tariffs to their highest levels since the 1930s and he has regularly threatened more duties, sparking concerns among businesses and economists.

Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney told reporters on Thursday that Canada will not allow unfair U.S. access to its markets if talks on various trade deals with Washington fail.

Trump imposed tariffs on Canadian steel, aluminum and autos earlier this year, prompting Ottawa to respond in kind. The two sides have been in talks for weeks on a potential deal for the steel and aluminum sectors.

Next year, the U.S., Canada and Mexico are due to review their 2020 continental free-trade agreement.—RT/Agency

Canada Signals U-turn: Ready To Resume Trade Negotiations With The US, Says Carney

CANADA: Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney on Friday said his country is prepared to pick up trade negotiations with the United States when Washington is ready, adding that Canada cannot control trade policy with its neighbor to the south.

US President Donald Trump on Thursday night said trade talks with Canada were over after an Ontario political ad cited Republican icon Ronald Reagan saying tariffs cause trade wars and economic disaster.

"My colleagues have been working with their American colleagues on detailed constructive negotiations, discussions on specific sectors -- steel, aluminum and energy," Carney said before departing Ottawa for Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia in his first official visit to Asia.

"We stand ready to pick up on that progress," he said.

Carney added that Canada can control new partnerships and opportunities, including with the "economic giants of Asia," the focus of his trip.—RT/Agency

Majestic Giants in Our Waters — A Wake-Up Call for Marine Stewardship

The recent sighting of four rare Bryde's whales off the coast of Gwadar is more than just a breathtaking natural moment — it is a reminder of the extraordinary marine heritage that Pakistan is blessed with. These gentle giants, observed by local fishermen participating in WWF-Pakistan's citizen science initiative, represent a living treasure in our waters. Yet, their presence also carries a warning: we must learn to respect, protect and celebrate this fragile ecosystem before it slips beyond recovery.

Pakistan's coastline is home to three majestic baleen whale species — the blue whale, the Arabian humpback whale, and the Bryde's whale, the very species spotted near Demi Zur. But these creatures are listed as "data deficient," meaning their global numbers and threats remain insufficiently studied. Past tragic incidents of stranded and deceased whales highlight the risks they face from human negligence, destructive fishing practices, marine traffic, and pollution.

This is where we, as a nation, must decide whether we remain passive spectators or become responsible custodians of our seas.

The efforts of coastal communities and WWF-Pakistan demonstrate that collaboration works. Fishermen reporting sightings, researchers documenting patterns, and authorities enforcing protective laws form the foundation of effective conservation. But awareness must extend far beyond marine experts — it must reach classrooms, policy halls, coastal villages, and the national mindset.

We cannot continue being our own worst enemies, poisoning our waters with waste, overfishing without foresight, and ignoring the delicate rhythms of marine life. Instead, let us foster eco-tourism, support sustainable fishing, and strengthen marine sanctuaries to not only preserve these magnificent beings but allow them to flourish.

The appearance of Bryde's whales is not just a beautiful sight — it is nature asking us to do better. Let us answer with commitment, pride, and care.

McNamee Says Italy Feels Deeply Let Down by Sinner After Davis Cup Exit

BOLOGNA: Former Australian Open tournament director Paul McNamee stated that the whole of Italy is mad at Jannik Sinner following the world no. 2's decision to withdraw from the Davis Cup Final 8, scheduled to take place in Bologna next month.

In a recent social media post, McNamee shared his views on the controversy, noting that the Italians feel disappointed after standing firmly behind Sinner during his recent doping case, only to feel let down by his withdrawal.

"Many Italian journalists, and the Italian public, fiercely loyal to Sinner during the doping crisis, but his decision to bypass the Davis Cup Finals – probably they felt going on national duty this year would have been the right thing to do," McNamee tweeted on 'X'.

Sinner announced earlier this week that he would not attend the Davis Cup because he was physically exhausted from the lengthy season and needed time to rest.

However, fans and former players criticised his choice, arguing that representing the national team should have been a top priority.

Former French Open champion Nicola Pietrangeli was among those to condemn the move, saying that the Italian should reconsider his decision.

"He has to play tennis, not go to war," Pietrangeli remarked.

Messi Signs New Inter Miami Contract, Staying with Club Until 2028

The eight-time Ballon d'Or winner had previously said that Inter Miami would be his last club, but the 38-year-old has given no hint about his possible retirement, saying that age would not be a factor.

"Our vision was to bring the best players to Inter Miami and to this city, and that's exactly what we have done," Inter Miami co-owner David Beckham said in a statement.

"He's still as committed as he's ever been and he still wants to win."

Rain Washes Away Pakistan's World Cup Dreams as Green Shirts Exit in Usual Disappointment

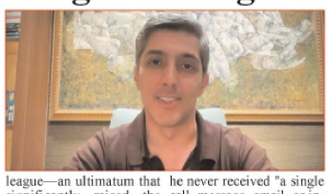
Pakistan's final ICC Women's World Cup clash against Sri Lanka ended in heartbreak — not from defeat, but from the skies above. Torrential rain washed out the much-anticipated match at Colombo's R. Premadasa Stadium on Friday, bringing a damp and disappointing close to Pakistan's campaign.

Persistent showers delayed the toss for hours, forcing officials to reduce the contest to just 34 overs per side. Once play finally began, Pakistan — led by Fatima Sana — cautiously reached 18 for no loss in 4.2 overs. But as dark clouds gathered once again, the heavens opened, forcing players off the field and eventually sealing the match's fate as a washout.

With this no-result, the Green Shirts finished second from the bottom on the World Cup points table, managing only three points and a negative net run rate of 2.65. The team struggled throughout the tournament to find consistency, with flashes of promise often dimmed by batting collapses and missed opportunities.

For Pakistan, the rain-soaked finale symbolizes a campaign of unfulfilled potential. Young talents like Fatima Sana and Sidra Ameen showed sparks of brilliance, but the side lacked the finishing touch needed to challenge the top teams. As Sri Lanka's drenched fans left the stands, disappointment hung in the humid Colombo air — not just for a lost match, but for Pakistan's World Cup journey that never quite took off. The Green Shirts now look ahead, determined to regroup and rebuild for a stronger comeback in the next global showdown.—Agency

Tareen Posts Barbed Apology After Receiving PCB Legal Notice



Ali Tareen, owner of the Pakistan Super League (PSL) franchise Multan Sultans, has issued a sharply sarcastic "apology" after receiving a legal notice from the Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB).

Framed as contrition but delivered with barbed asides, his response took aim at the league's stewardship while acknowledging the board's grievances over alleged breaches of the 10-year franchise contract.

According to the notice, the PCB accused Tareen of violating multiple clauses of the PSL franchise agreement and demanded both a public apology and a retraction of his critical remarks. It warned that failure to comply could trigger termination of Multan Sultans' contract and see Tareen blacklisted from the league—an ultimatum that significantly raised the stakes of the dispute.

Posting a video on his X account, Tareen appeared to comply in form while contesting the substance, using sarcastic language to question the PSL's management and decision-making.

Tareen began by outlining the PCB's ultimatum before questioning the board's approach to conflict. He expressed frustration over the lack of direct communication, stating that he never received "a single call, message, email, or invitation asking to meet and resolve these issues together."

"Instead, I was served a legal notice," he said. "If you were more competent, you would know these matters aren't handled this way." He accused the management of being surrounded by "yes-men" and unable to accept criticism, asserting that the league "belongs to the fans and to all of Pakistan, not to the handful of people currently running it."

While stating his legal team saw no need for an apology, Tareen proceeded to offer one "because I want the PSL to improve." His apology, however, served to reiterate all his previous complaints.

He apologised for expressing frustration when he noticed issues and for his critical remarks about what he perceived as a lack of professionalism.

He apologised for "criticising the opening ceremony," sarcastically praising the "amazing" act of having "national stars... lip-sync." He conceded that wanting the ceremony to "start on time, finish on time, and that the mic should work properly" was going too far. —Agency

Darren Sammy Criticizes West Indies Spinners After Costly ODI Defeat to Bangladesh

DHAKA: West Indies head coach Daren Sammy did not hold back his criticism of his bowlers following the team's 2-1 series loss to Bangladesh in the three-match ODI series.

Sammy expressed disappointment over his spinners' failure to exploit conditions that heavily favoured them, describing the pitches as "dark, cracked, and offering variable bounce."

Bangladesh's spinners completely outclassed their West Indian counterparts, taking 27 wickets at an average of 14.66 and an economy rate of 3.80. In contrast, West Indies spinners managed only 18 wickets at an average of 30.05 and an economy rate of 4.39.

Left-arm spinner Gudakesh Motie and all-rounder Roston Chase struggled throughout the series, while even part-timer Alick Athanaze produced better figures than them in the second ODI.

Returning spinners Khary Pierre and Akeal Hosein, however, showed improvement — with Hosein's four-wicket haul in the third ODI standing out as the lone bowling highlight for the visitors.

"The positive in the ODI series was probably the batting of Shai Hope — how he continues to put the team on his back every time he faces a challenge," Sammy said.

"He is a leader. But I am really disappointed in the way we bowled. You come to Bangladesh and you know spinners should be licking their lips. The conditions were ideal, but what we displayed over the last three games was very poor and inconsistent."

Despite his frustration, Sammy acknowledged that home advantage plays an important role in international cricket.

"I always want to ask for home advantage," he added. "I can't tell Bangladesh what wickets to prepare. My job is to make sure my team has the skillset to handle any conditions. Bangladesh did what they had to do to win at home — that's what matters. But I felt my players just didn't perform well throughout the series."

Sammy also voiced concern over West Indies' poor fielding effort, admitting that the team underperformed in all areas.—Agency

Mercurial NFL Quarterback Aaron Rodgers Reveals He Plans to Retire as a Packer

GREEN BAY: Aaron Rodgers has made it clear that he wants to end his career with the Green Bay Packers. He shared his wish ahead of Sunday's matchup between the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Packers.

This weekend, Rodgers will face his former team for the first time, and the Packers hope he can set sentiment aside and focus on helping them improve to 5-2.

Reflecting on his long tenure with the Packers, Rodgers said that he has given 18 years of his career to the team, and he will retire as a Packer.

"I was there for 18 years, regardless of when I hang it up, that's the bulk of my career. I'll retire a Packer and see what happens after that. I've got a lot of love for the organization [and] my time there," Rodgers said.

The Packers are expected to eventually welcome Rodgers back the same way as they did with Brett Favre.

Favre returned to Green Bay in 2015, one year before his induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, and his No. 4 was retired.

Rodgers last played for the Packers in 2022, before being traded to the New York Jets in 2023.

After two seasons in New York, he signed with the Steelers this past offseason, while Sunday's game marks his first matchup against his former team.

Speaking with Packers reporters on a Zoom call Thursday, Rodgers reflected warmly on his year in Green Bay and showed no hard feelings about not finishing his career there.—Agency

Aisam-ul-Haq Vows to Elevate Pakistan Tennis Through Action, Not Words

LAHORE: President of the Pakistan Tennis Federation (PTF), Aisam-ul-Haq, has reaffirmed his commitment to developing tennis in the country, saying that all promises made to the players are being fulfilled — stressing that he believes in "action, not words."

In an interview with Geo News, Aisam said that since taking charge, his administration has taken concrete steps to raise the sport's standards nationwide.

"We have introduced 12 new national tournaments and gradually increased the prize money," he shared.

He emphasised the landmark achievement of securing an ATP Challenger Tour event for the first time in Pakistan's history, describing it as a development "equivalent to hosting an ICC event in cricket.

"I had promised the return of international tennis to Pakistan. We've now been allotted seven ITF junior tournaments, and for the first time, we've secured an ATP Challenger Tour event — which is equivalent to hosting an ICC event in cricket," he stated.

Aisam, who represented Pakistan globally for over two decades, stressed his philosophy of performance over promises.

"I've always believed in letting my racket do the talking. Even during my playing career, I focused on making my country proud through results, not words," he said.

The PTF chief also revealed that junior players now have more opportunities to compete internationally.

"The number of players participating abroad has increased. We're prioritising merit — opportunities will go to those who deserve them, not just those who can afford to play overseas," Aisam concluded.—Agency
