Opposition Alliance Declares Black Day Protest Against 27th Amendment On Nov 21

ISLAMABAD: The opposition alliance Tehreek-i-Tahafuz Ayeen-i-Pakistan (TTAP) rejected the 27th Constitutional Amendment and announced nationwide protest and 'Black Day' to be observed on November 21.

According to a statement issued after an emergency meeting chaired by veteran politician Mehmood Khan Achakzai, the amendment has curtailed the authority of Supreme Court.

The statement said the government had "destroyed the basic structure of the Constitution" and demanded that the Constitution be restored to its original form.

It added that the 'controversial' amendment had placed the judiciary under the control of the executive.

The joint opposition further stated that the recent resignations of judges were being seen as acts of resistance.

It announced that the united opposition would stage a protest march from Parliament House to the Supreme Court on Monday, November 17.

Moreover, a resolution against the constitutional amendment would also be tabled in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Assembly.The meeting was attended by PTI Chairman Barrister Gohar, Salman Akram Raja, former National Assembly speaker Asad Qaiser, Allama Raja Nasir Abbas, Sardar Akhtar Jan Mengal, Zain Shah, Sajid Tareen, Mustafa Nawaz Khokhar and former prime minister Shahid Khaqan Abbasi.—RT/Agency

Six Judges Named To Constitutional Court As Three Take Oath Amid Political Turmoil

ISLAMABAD: Marking a historic point in country's judicial and constitutional history, Justice Aminuddin Khan on Friday was sworn in as the first Chief Justice of the newly formed Federal Constitutional Court (FCC) today (Friday) under the 27th Constitutional Amendment.

President Asif Ali Zardari administered the oath to Justice Aminuddin at the Aiwan-e-Sadar today, a day after he approved his appointment to the key post on the advice of Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif.

The president made the appointment under clause (3) of Article 175-A, read with Article 175-C of the Constitution. It added that it would come into effect from the date that Justice Aminuddin took his oath.

The oath-taking ceremony was attended by Field Marshal Asim Munir, Pakistan Navy and Pakistan Air Force chiefs, Pakistan Peoples Party Chairman Bilawal Bhutto-Zardari and federal ministers including DPM Ishaq Dar, Ahsan Iqbal, Finance Minister Muhammad Aurangzeb and other dignitaries and officials.

Justice Aminuddin, whose legal practice started around four decades back, was previously serving as the head of the now-dissolved constitutional bench, which was formed as a result of the 26th Constitutional Amendment last year.

The Ministry of Law has also issued a notification for the appointment of six judges to the FCC. The judges include Justice Syed Hasan Azhar Rizvi, Justice Aamer Farooq, Justice Ali Baqar Najafi, Justice Muhammad Karim Khan Agha, Justice Rozi Khan Barrech and Justice Arshad Hussain Shah.

President Signs Off On Resignations Of Justices Mansoor Ali Shah And Athar Minallah

ISLAMABAD: President Asif Ali Zardari on Friday approved the resignations of Supreme Court justices Mansoor Ali Shah and Athar Minallah.

Both the judges had forwarded their resignations to President Zardari following the enactment of the 27th Constitutional Amendment a day ago.

The jurists had criticised the 27th Amendment, describing it as a "grave assault on the Constitution of Pakistan". However, the federal government called the judges' resignations "political speeches" and the latter's allegations "unconstitutional".

Justice Shah, in his 13-page resignation letter, called the recent constitutional tweak an assault on the Constitution that dismantles the Supreme Court, compromises judicial independence and weakens the country's constitutional democracy.

He wrote that the amendment, passed "without debate or consultation", creates a Federal Constitutional Court (FCC) above the Supreme Court and places the judiciary under executive influence, leaving the apex court "truncated and diminished".

Justice Shah said he could not remain in a court "stripped of its constitutional authority", adding that continuing would amount to silently accepting a constitutional wrong.—RT/Agency

Four Accomplices Of Slain Bomber Nabbed In Islamabad Judicial Complex Attack Probe

ISLAMABAD: Security agencies have arrested four terrorists linked to the extremist group Fitna-ul-Khawarij, who allegedly assisted the suicide bomber involved in the recent attack on the Judicial Complex Islamabad. According to the Government of Pakistan, a joint intelligence-based operation carried out by the Intelligence Bureau (IB) and the Counter-Terrorism Department (CTD) successfully dismantled the entire cell responsible for the bombing.

During interrogation, the handler of the deceased attacker confessed that a commander of a banned organisation, based in Afghanistan, had contacted the bomber through the Telegram app and ordered him to carry out an attack in Islamabad.

Officials revealed that the attacker had travelled from Afghanistan to Pakistan and was provided shelter in the outskirts of Islamabad by local facilitators. The Army Act Amendment Bill was passed by a majority vote in the Senate. However, members of Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam-Fazl (JUI-F) and Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) opposed the bill.

JUI-F's Senator Kamran Murtaza suggested that the bill be referred to the relevant committee for further consideration.

Afghanistan's Self-Inflicted Folly — And Pakistan's Moment to Walk Away

The Taliban-led Afghan regime's asinine and ungrateful decision to suspend all trade with Pakistan is yet another reminder that sentimentality in foreign policy is a luxury Pakistan can no longer afford. For decades, Pakistan has paid a staggering economic, social and security price for propping up Afghanistan—always under the illusion of "Islamic brotherhood." Yet Kabul's repeated backstabbing proves that Pakistan doesn't need enemies when it has neighbors like this.In the midst of its unholy honeymoon with the mad dog of South Asia, Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the delusional Kabul administration seems convinced it can replace Pakistan with new trade partners. If Afghanistan believes it has options, then it must also be reminded—so does Pakistan. And perhaps this forced rupture will finally free Pakistan from the rampant abuse, corruption and smuggling that flourished under Afghan transit trade.The shock waves now rippling through Khyber Pakhtunkhwa's traders and transporters are understandable. Hundreds of trucks stranded at Torkham, industries reliant on Afghan coal, and fears of losing access to Central Asian markets paint a grim short-term picture. Business leaders warn of huge financial losses, shuttered factories, jobless labourers, and plummeting tax revenues. Local traders caught between contractual obligations and a sealed border now find themselves trapped between the devil and the deep sea.But in the long term, this rupture may be the correction Pakistan desperately needed. For too long, Afghan trade has been a one-way street of concessions, blind trust and national losses. Pakistan cannot allow its economy—or its dignity—to remain hostage to Kabul's tantrums.This must be the moment Islamabad adopts a clear, unapologetic Pakistan First approach. If Afghanistan wishes to sever ties, let it. Pakistan's future lies in diversifying, reforming and strengthening its own economy—not subsidizing an ungrateful neighbor intoxicated by delusions and new alliances.Sometimes loss is liberation. And this might be Pakistan's chance to finally walk away.

Lorenzo Musetti Pulls Out of Davis Cup Amid Shock Fitness Concerns

TURIN: Lorenzo Musetti has withdrawn from Italy's squad defending its Davis Cup title in Bologna next week, citing physical fatigue and family reasons following his defeat to Carlos Alcaraz at the ATP Finals in Turin.

Italy, winners of the last two Davis Cup editions, will also be without former world No.?1 Jannik Sinner, who earlier announced he would skip the tournament to focus on preparing for his Australian Open title defense.

Musetti, who missed out on automatic qualification after losing to Novak Djokovic in Athens on Saturday, made his debut at the season-ending ATP Finals in Turin this week as a late substitute following Djokovic's withdrawal.

Unlike the other seven players competing, the Italian did not have time to practice at the Inalpi Arena prior to the competition.

In addition to his nearly three-hour match against Djokovic, Musetti had played two additional rounds in Athens, contributing to his physical strain.

"Given my physical condition and my family situation, in agreement with captain Filippo Volandri, I have decided not to participate in the Davis Cup finals in Bologna," Musetti said.

"Obviously, there is a lot of regret and disappointment regarding how I approached this competition. With a better approach, perhaps I would have tried to play it, despite the family commitment. I knew that physical fatigue was difficult to shake off after the battles of the last few months, especially over the past few weeks," he concluded.—Agency

England Keep Winning Surge Alive with Commanding Victory Over Serbia

WEMBLEY: England maintained their remarkable form in World Cup qualifying with a 2-0 victory over Serbia at Wembley, marking their seventh consecutive win.

Despite a rain-soaked evening and a sluggish start, the hosts displayed resilience and quality to secure the win.

England began the match slowly, a stark contrast to their recent dominant performances, but head coach Thomas Tuchel's motivational intervention helped lift the team.

The breakthrough came in the 28th minute when Bukayo Saka scored a superb volley, giving England a lead they would maintain throughout the match. Tuchel also handed a first senior cap to Manchester City's promising young defender Nico O'Reilly.

Substitutions including Phil Foden and Eberechi Eze after the 65th minute injected energy into the team, with Eze's curling finish in the final minute sealing a confident performance.

England goalkeeper Jordan Pickford extended his clean sheet streak to 10 matches, while the team has now scored 20 goals without conceding in World Cup qualifying.

Although the match lacked the tension of previous fixtures, the victory further boosted the squad's confidence ahead of the 2026 World Cup.

The match also highlighted the depth of England's squad, with contributions from Jude Bellingham, Foden, Marcus Rashford, and debutant Reece Wharton proving valuable.

After the game, Tuchel praised his team's resilience but noted areas for improvement.

"It was a difficult, complicated match. We had to adapt and be flexible. Maybe we lacked a little precision with the final pass, otherwise we could have created more chances and scored earlier to play with more calm," he said.

England's final qualifier will be against Albania on Sunday, while the draw for the 2026 World Cup is scheduled in Washington on December 5.—Agency

Shohei Ohtani Claims Fourth Major League MVP, Extending Historic Legacy

LAS VEGAS: Japanese baseball superstar Shohei Ohtani of the Los Angeles Dodgers has claimed his fourth Major League Baseball MVP award.

The 31-year-old two-way player was the unanimous choice for the National League MVP, marking his third consecutive MVP victory since 2023, when he played for the Los Angeles Angels in the American League.

All 30 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America cast their first-place votes for Ohtani, giving him a perfect 420 points. Kyle Schwarber of the Philadelphia Phillies finished second with 260 points, followed by Juan Soto of the New York Mets with 231 points.

This achievement makes Ohtani the only player in MLB history to earn multiple MVP awards in both the American and National Leagues, joining Hall of Famer Frank Robinson in winning MVPs in both circuits.

He also joins Barry Bonds as one of the few players to win three consecutive MVP awards and becomes just the second player, after Joe Morgan of the 1975-76 Cincinnati Reds, to win back-to-back MVPs and consecutive World Series titles in the same years.

Speaking after receiving the award, Ohtani praised his competitors.

"Before I say that, I wanted to just give a big shout-out to Juan Soto and Schwarber — they had amazing seasons as well. They helped bring the best out of me in competition," he said.

Ohtani's latest MVP campaign followed a season very different from his record-setting 2024 performance, when he became the first MLB player to join the 50-50 club with 54 home runs and 59 stolen bases.

Despite recovering from elbow ligament surgery that had sidelined him from pitching, he continued to excel offensively.—Agency

Norway Edges Closer to First FIFA World Cup in 28 Years After Beating Estonia

SOGNSVEIEN: Norway is on the verge of qualifying for their first World Cup in 28 years, thanks to goals from Erling Haaland and Alexander Sorloth, who secured a 4-1 victory over Estonia in the 2026 FIFA World Cup qualifiers at Ullevaal Stadium.

Just five minutes into the second half, Sorloth scored twice in quick succession, followed by a brace from Haaland, giving Norway four goals in twelve minutes.

In the 64th minute, Robi Saarma scored a consolation goal for Estonia.

Midfielder Morten Thorsby praised both Haaland and Odegaard, noting their growing understanding of the game and their increasing leadership on and off the pitch.

"They have also gained a better understanding of the influence they have on the rest of us," Thorsby said. "What they say, what they do, and how they act—it spreads."

With a three-point lead in Group I over second-place Italy, whom they will host in Oslo on Sunday, Norway has almost secured a spot at the World Cup in North America next year. Italy would need to defeat Norway and overcome a 17-goal deficit to claim the automatic qualifying spot, making a playoff in March the likely scenario for the Italians.—Agency

Sowing the Seeds of Tomorrow: Green Pedagogies in Education

By Dr. Khadim Hussain Dahri

Educationist, Professor, Researcher & Motivational Speaker

The metaphor is influential and precise: to "sow seeds" is an act of hope, investment, and faith in a future we may not see ourselves. The traditional, industrial-age model of schooling, which often views nature as a separate resource to be exploited, is proving inadequate for the challenges of the 21st century. In its place, "Green Pedagogies" are emerging, transformative approaches to teaching and learning that seeks to sow the seeds of sustainability, ecological literacy, and a deep, enduring connection to the living world. Green pedagogies are not merely about teaching about the environment; they are about teaching within and for the environment. It is an umbrella term for educational approaches that includes:Experiential Learning: Learning by doing—planting trees, testing local water quality, maintaining school gardens provide multiple experiences to the learners Critical Thinking and Problem-Solving: Encouraging students to think critically, understand and analyze the root causes of environmental issues and design feasible solutions of the problems Interdisciplinary Approach: Weaving climate and ecological concepts across all subjects, from science and geography to Urdu literature and social studies. Logical Reason: To foster pro-environmental behavior, we must engage students' hearts and hands, not just their minds. Experiential learning creates lasting neural pathways and emotional connections.The Outdoor Classroom: Nature is not a destination for a once-a-year field trip, but a regular, integral learning space. Whether it's a school garden, a local park, or a patch of regenerated forest, learning happens in the environment. Student-Centered & Inquiry-Based: Learning is driven by students' curiosity about the world around them. Questions like "Why are these leaves changing color?" or "Where does our water go after it rains?" become the starting point for interdisciplinary exploration in science, math, language, and art.The Impact of Green Pedagogies: The seeds sown through these practices yield a rich and vital harvest: Empowered Learners: Students become proactive problem-solvers, not passive recipients of doom-laden information. They see themselves as agents of positive change.Enhanced Well-being: Numerous studies show that learning in natural environments reduces stress, improves concentration, and boosts mental and physical health. Deep, Relevant Learning: Knowledge gained through real-world experience is more meaningful, memorable, and applicable. Stronger Communities: School gardens can provide food for local families, restoration projects can beautify neighborhoods, and student advocacy can influence local policy, strengthening the bond between the school and its community.Conclusion: "Sowing the Seeds of Tomorrow" is more than a poetic slogan; it is an urgent educational imperative. Green pedagogies offer a pathway out of the classroom and into the world for which we must all learn to care. By rooting education in the soil of experience, empathy, and action, we are not just teaching children about the world. We are nurturing a generation that will cherish it, protect it, and flourish within it. The seeds we sow in our classrooms today will determine the harvest of tomorrow.

Scientists Recover World's Oldest RNA from 39,000-Year-Old Mammoth

USA: Scientists have extracted the oldest-known RNA from a woolly mammoth that lived in Siberia about 39,000 years ago, revealing that the fragile molecule can survive far longer than previously believed. The RNA was recovered from the muscle tissue of "Yuka," a juvenile male mammoth discovered in 2010 in Siberian permafrost and considered one of the best-preserved specimens of its kind. The findings show which genes were active in Yuka's body near the time of death, offering rare insight into cell stress and muscle function. Researchers say ancient RNA opens a new frontier in understanding Ice Age species, complementing breakthroughs in ancient DNA and protein studies. They believe RNA may be recoverable from even older remains under ideal conditions. The study, published in Cell, highlights the potential to analyse gene expression in extinct megafauna and even historical human-related samples. Set to chase 289, Pakistan comfortably chased down the target for the loss of just two wickets and 10 balls to spare.

Khawaja Asif Slams Judiciary, Says Conscience Awakened Too Late

ISLAMABAD: Defence Minister Khawaja Asif on Friday sharply criticised sections of the judiciary, stating that two judges suddenly found their "conscience awakened" after the amendment passed by the National Assembly a day earlier, yet remained silent when, according to him, "kangaroo courts" were used to carry out political victimisation against his party.

Speaking on the floor of the National Assembly, Asif said that the role of the judiciary in what he termed a conspiracy against former prime minister Nawaz Sharif was evident to the entire nation. He added that the entire chain of events began with the Panama Papers case, which ultimately led to Nawaz Sharif being declared disqualified for life. "That injustice was committed by the same judiciary," he remarked.Asif claimed that during their tenure, names such as former chief justices Saqib Nisar, Umar Ata Bandial, Justice Munib Akhtar and others repeatedly surfaced for allegedly targeting the PML-N leadership.

He further criticised Justice Athar Minallah, saying that the judge's sudden concern for democracy had emerged "only today," reminding the House that Minallah previously served as a provincial minister under former military ruler Pervez Musharraf.The minister reiterated that political engineering and selective accountability in the past had severely damaged Pakistan's democratic institutions, urging the judiciary to reflect on its role and uphold impartiality going forward.—RT/Agency

PTI Chairman Gohar Ali Khan Vows To Restore Judiciary's Independence

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) Chairman Barrister Gohar Ali Khan has pledged that the party will work to restore the independence of the judiciary while striving to strengthen democracy in the country. Speaking to the media in Islamabad, he emphasized that PTI remains committed to ensuring that democratic principles guide all legislative and institutional actions.

Barrister Gohar Ali Khan highlighted the differences between the 26th and 27th constitutional amendments, noting that the party had strongly opposed the changes. "We protested vigorously against the amendment and will continue to raise our voice inside the House as well," he said. He stressed that any constitutional amendment must respect institutional independence and reflect the will of the people, rather than being imposed unilaterally.

The PTI chairman further remarked on recent developments within the judiciary, stating that two Supreme Court judges had resigned, signaling the need for reforms to uphold judicial autonomy. He argued that strengthening institutions, rather than undermining them, is crucial for the long-term stability and democratic governance of Pakistan.Gohar Ali Khan reiterated that PTI's approach is rooted in dialogue and lawful protest, while holding that the party will continue to oppose any measures that compromise institutional freedom or public interest.—RT/Agency

China Warns Japan Of Crushing Defeat If It Interferes In Taiwan Crisis

BEIJING: Japan will suffer a "crushing defeat" by the Chinese military if it tries to use force to intervene over Taiwan, China's defence ministry said on Friday, ramping up the rhetoric over Japanese Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi's remarks about the island.

Takaichi sparked a diplomatic row with Beijing with comments in parliament last week that a Chinese attack on Taiwan could amount to a "survival-threatening situation" and trigger a military response from Tokyo.

China's top diplomat in Osaka shared a news article about Takaichi's remarks about Taiwan on X and commented "the dirty neck that sticks itself in must be cut off", prompting a protest from Japan's embassy in Beijing to Chinese Vice Foreign Minister Sun Weidong.

Chinese Defence Ministry spokesperson Jiang Bin said that Takaichi's words were extremely irresponsible and dangerous.

"Should the Japanese side fail to draw lessons from history and dare to take a risk, or even use force to interfere in the Taiwan question, it will only suffer a crushing defeat against the steel-willed People's Liberation Army and pay a heavy price," Jiang said in a statement.

On Thursday, Sun summoned Japan's Ambassador to China, Kenji Kanasugi, to lodge a "strong protest" over Takaichi's remarks.

It was the first time in more than two years that Beijing has called in a Japanese ambassador. Sun last summoned then-ambassador Hideo Tarumi in August 2023 over Japan's decision to release wastewater from the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant into the sea.—RT/Agency

Russia Says North Korean Troops Proving Crucial In Clearing Mines In Kursk Region

KURSK: North Korean troops who helped Russia repel a major Ukrainian incursion into its western Kursk region are now playing an important role in clearing the area of mines, the Russian Defence Ministry said on Friday.

Under a mutual defence pact between the two countries, North Korea last year sent some 14,000 soldiers to fight alongside Russia in Kursk, and more than 6,000 were killed, according to South Korean, Ukrainian and Western sources.

Ukrainian forces smashed across the border in August 2024 and held on to substantial pockets of territory for months. Russian President Vladimir Putin said in April that Russia had finally pushed them out, with help from the North Koreans.

The significant North Korean role in Russia's de-mining operations highlights the desire on both sides to further develop their military ties, which North Korean leader Kim Jong Un said last month would "advance non-stop".

Video published by the Russian Defence Ministry showed North Korean troops being shown different types of mines and mine detection equipment, taking part in training exercises and singing patriotic songs.

"They're great lads, they learn quickly, listen attentively and take notes," said a Russian commander with the call sign "Veles".

A second commander, "Lesnik", said: "They are on an equal level with my sappers, carrying out the same tasks as my lads."Russian military news outlet Krasnaya Zvezda said the Russian and North Korean soldiers were dealing with a "previously unseen density" of anti-tank and anti-personnel mines left behind by Ukrainian forces in Kursk. It said many of the devices had been manufactured by NATO countries.—RT/Agency

Global Media Weighs In On Pakistan's Sweeping Constitutional Defence Reforms

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan's Parliament has passed a landmark constitutional amendment granting Field Marshal Asim Munir lifetime legal immunity and overarching authority over all the three branches of the armed forces.

According to the Financial Times, the move comes amid heightened economic pressure and regional tensions, positioning Field Marshal Munir at the centre of Pakistan's national security and decision-making structure. The paper noted that the amendment places him at the helm of defence coordination, effectively making him the most powerful figure in the country's institutional hierarchy.

The New York Times reported that Munir secured extended constitutional powers and lifetime legal protection through the amendment, reducing the Supreme Court's oversight and expanding the military's institutional influence. The report added that Munir is expected to assume the role of Chief of Defence Forces by the end of the month.

The Guardian described the legislation as a turning point for Pakistan's democracy, warning that it could limit the judiciary's independence. However, government officials maintain the change is aimed at ensuring "institutional harmony and national stability".

Germany's Deutsche Welle (DW) confirmed that the amendment also grants lifetime privileges to military chiefs and establishes a new Federal Constitutional Court to hear constitutional cases. The government claims this will strengthen the justice system and expedite judicial proceedings.

Bloomberg termed the move an "institutional consolidation of military influence", noting that Field Marshal Munir is widely seen as Pakistan's most powerful leader, with significant influence over security, foreign policy and economic affairs.

Analyst Michael Kugelman said the amendment constitutionally defines the power structure between civilian and military institutions and may provide long-term stability.—RT/Agency

Modi's Alliance Poised For Dominant Win In Hindi Heartland Vote

BIHAR: Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi's ruling coalition is set to comfortably retain power in the poor and populous state of Bihar, a vote count showed on Friday, giving him a boost after a disappointing national vote last year.

Winning Bihar is crucial because it is India's third-most-populous state with nearly 130 million people and it sends the fifth-highest number of lawmakers to Parliament. Control of the eastern state strengthens any party's power in the Hindi heartland and often helps to shape national political narratives.

Modi's National Democratic Alliance coalition could easily cross the majority mark of 122 seats, with data from the Election Commission of India showing it was leading in more than 170 seats. TV channel said it was ahead in 191 seats, a potential gain of 69 seats from the last election.

"Bihar's mandate is clear!" Modi's Bharatiya Janata Party said on X. "The people have made it clear — now development is the identity. Not jungle raj, good governance is needed!"

The Bihar outcome would mark a sharp reversal for Modi, who lost his parliamentary majority in last year's national elections and had to lean on allies to remain in power. Since then, his party has steadily regained ground, winning several key state contests.—RT/Agency
